

TRAVEL LOCK

Our 148TSA combination lock is especially useful for travel to the United States, as United States Customs can open this padlock and relock the case.

Are you looking for a lock for your suitcases and bags especially for a trip to the United States? The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) opens suitcases, bags, backpacks, and other luggage at random or when they can't see exactly what something is during screening at the airport. TSA employees have master keys that fit TSA locks. This keeps your lock from being damaged. And the case can be locked normally over and over again. Our 148TSA combination lock has an indicator that shows whether the lock has been opened using a TSA key. The nameplate included with the lock allows you to personalize it.
